

FANNING THE FIRE

BLUEGRASS FOR A NEW GENERATION

Fanning the Fire is a vibrant documentary short film (20 minute total running time) that features a young Texas teen who followed his dreams from being a fan of bluegrass music all the way to opening for some of the greatest entertainers in the business – in less than three years. Along the way, the documentary explores why people young and old get hooked on playing this music and enjoying companionship at festivals around the world. Viewers also enjoy behind-the-scenes visits with master musicians from across the USA and Europe who explain how they came to appreciate this uniquely American form of music and why it has broad appeal to beginning players and professionals alike.

Along with the story of Lucas White, Fanning the Fire features interview and live performance footage of legendary bluegrass musicians (including many GRAMMY® winners and nominees) such as Dan Tyminski (of Alison Krauss & Union Station), J. D. Crowe, Rhonda Vincent & The Rage, Adam Steffey, Claire Lynch, Dudley Connell, and others. Fanning the Fire is a fast-moving look at where bluegrass music has been and where it's going.

Copies of the full-length Fanning the Fire DVD (over an hour of video, including the film and all bonus features) is available from the Bluegrass Heritage Foundation, a 501c3 non-profit charitable organization that supports bluegrass music. A donation of at least $15 per DVD is requested.
